

A Letter To Hindu Youth

in America

Dear Pulastya,

When I ran into you at the gym you asked me how the new job was going... And I wanted to elaborate a little more on my answer: "better". In fact the best job, if one can justly afford, is no job at all. But if it is necessary to maintain the bare necessities of life then the job that leaves you with most energy when the work-day is over, in order for you to be able to focus on your cosmic occupation - becoming an avatar.

This "job" people pursue to make their parents proud and their frenemies envious is suicide. In physics you learned that if the center of mass of a body is outside it, that body will be out of balance - and so set in motion. In other words, that unbalanced object become enslaved to whomever captures its center of mass. In the case of physicians, it is insurance companies and pharmaceuticals.

In a few weeks you are about to be set into motion, "I follow the money". Spoiler alert, I will tell you where the money leads: to a grave. The adage "time is money" can only apply to immortal beings with infinite time. But for mortal creatures, time is priceless, time is God and time is Now. A centered man does not follow anything but his heart, curiosity is his lighthouse. Your parents have given you the ultimate gift of bringing you to America... These dreams they have stuffed you with are good in places like India. Here word is king, that is why they put it first in the constitution.

Now at times here behaves alot like there. Marching to "might is right" instead of satyameva jayate. When avatar-to-be is guilted to swallow their parents'
dreams to the infinite vastness of their own heart
- the infinite bounty of heaven they are also leaving the people venerable to coercion. In the absence of Truth, lies don't sound so bad.

The first amendment gives our words free rein, but capitalism produces awful selfish narrow sighted minds. Other-places have great minds, but governments that are eager to sever them as soon as the wrong words come out of them.

You must become the great minds of there...

Become a doctor if you must. But a healer of spirits
before that of bodies.
Become an avatar.
For the sake of harmony of all levels of society. Become an avatar for the sake of workers, business and government.

Kshatriyas have hijacked God, they kill and imprison real Brahmins and present fake-ones to the public.

Oppression reigns because fake-Brahmins spread fear and hate hidden in half-truths. Fake-Brahmins spew an opium to the masses making them surrender to the status quo as God's will. Here in America things are much worse when it comes to God.

Sacred scripture and the expounding on everything holy has been taken up by the least likely groups to understand their mysteries and unlock their truths - Vaishyas and Shudras. Both groups are not able to reach the higher truths because they lack the mental capacity and self awareness to voyage through the symbols and metaphors and are spreading a dense, dark, dis-compassionate doctrine.

The Light of Truth is ever present, but yearns for brave intellects with the readiness to traverse the difficult terrain and rise to the highest heavens.
Until that time, the Kali Yuga will persist.

Now when I mention the caste system (Brahmin, Kshatriyas, Viashyas and Shudras) I am not referring to racial groups of people but cosmic levels that apply to every people in the world and every religion. With grace, beings from lower realms can transform and transcend their roll in the world.

Siddhartha Gautama, AKA the Buddha sacrificed his family's kingdom to become a Brahmin and find enlightenment in his lifetime. And that was, according to Brahmin's of his time and impossibility. In the same but opposite manner, many Brahmins have and may forgo their cosmic responsibility of being the custodians of wisdom and light into our world in order to become Viashya-traders of onions, pills and insurance.

The path and vehicle to the evolution of your soul and your transformation and the way for you to elevate the center of your being from the lower chakras to the highest is continuously meditating, chanting and desiring goodness and blessing to the first created being, and the one in continuous absorption in the Godhead. "Jai Guru Deva" should be your prayer. The more sincere you are the faster you will see the changes in yourself. Lower desires and fetishes you used to have and define yourself by will loosen their bonds to you and will be on your journey to that center of the cosmos. The less you want anything out of the prayer for your "lower/limited" self, but a genuine well being to the being at the Godhead, and those who have been blessed to drink from the source, the stronger the pull will be and the more bountiful will the gifts be bestowed at your feet and the temptation to pick up a shiny jewel like photographic memory or clairvoyance and to forget the Godhead , destination and be content with a relatively better view of hell.
